NOTE.—Limited space necessitates omitting Mr. O. J. De Wolf's conclusive defence of making (as above), Peter, Sarah and Joseph (16, 17, 18), children of Peter and Sarah (Couch) De Wolf (see 6), instead of children of Matthew and Esther (Higley) De Wolf (see 12), as do the Salisbury Chart and other Genealogies. The reader is referred to his own recently published work (see p. 95). In brief, his argument is:

1. Peter De Wolf (16) was born (established by Rec. Pension Office) 1753, hence Matthew De Wolf, b. 1744, and Esther Higley, b. 1743, could not be his parents.

2. Miss Cynthia Pelton, granddaughter of Joseph (18) now living, aged eighty, distinctly remembers her grandparents telling the singular coincidence that the names of the parents of both were Peter and Sarah, and she personally knew Mrs. Lucy (Couch) Morey, sister of her grandmother, Sarah Couch.

3. Grandchildren of Joseph (18) remember his saying he was born on land that belonged to no State. Such a piece, called the "Wedge," near Granby, was long in dispute between Massachusetts and Connecticut. Deeds are on record from John Strickland (1755) to Matthew De Wolf, of Bolton, from the latter to his sons Peter, Ezra and Edward; and from Peter conveying land on the "Wedge" to his son Joseph.

If corroboration of such conclusive arguments were needed, it is furnished by letters of Dr. T. K. De Wolf (among those kindly sent the author by Mrs. Salisbury), which read: "My father had only two brothers, Ezekiel and Russell;" again, "I well remember my grandmother, Esther Higley." Mr. Samuel De Wolf (Chicago, June 6, 1884), then aged eighty-four, writes Mrs. Salisbury that at the time of his father, Joseph's death, "the family lived on a "wedge" of land lying between Connecticut and Massachusetts, not covered by the Charter of either State. He speaks of his grandmother Couch: "There are five children that I remember, four sons and a daughter; Samuel, Peter, Joseph and Bethuel. Samuel and Bethuel went to upper Canada; Joseph and Peter to Ohio." He refers to his father's marriage to Sarah Gibbons, of Granville, and of their thirteen children.
